

AN INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

While the march of State improvements goes on the question of an Industrial School presents itself. Nevada is sadly in need of such an institution. When a young lad goes wrong for the first time it is unfair to send him for a term of years to associate with hardened criminals who will make it a point to teach him not only the alphabet but the literature of crime so that when he leaves the prison he will have made up his mind that he will make crime a life profession. Such a proposition is one appalling to contemplate and it is well known that some of the hardest criminals on the coast are inmates of the Nevada penitentiary. Prof. Hutchings of New York in his treatise on reformatory institutions says:

"I regard the Reform and Industrial Schools as a great preventative of crime. A boy sent to such an institution receives a first warning that the eye of the law is watching his movements. He is well treated here although under restraint and when he leaves it he does not go forth to the world branded as a convict. Such an institution is a saving to the State for in a majority of cases—I do not say all—the State is not apt to be called upon a second time to foot the expenses of fresh crimes from that source."

In this State many youthful criminals have escaped scot free because by reason of their years. Juries have acquitted them rather than send them where they would mingle with the lowest criminals. When such a boy is acquitted by a jury he often takes it to mean that the law is unable to cope with one so sharp-witted as himself and seeks fresh fields for criminal adventure. An Industrial School would take that idea out of him, for then he will be made to know that a second conviction means nothing less than the penitentiary.

The Grismer-Davies Company.
Samuel Thall, advance agent of the famous Grismer-Davies Dramatic Company, arrived in town last evening to make arrangements for the appearance in this city on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week, January 25 and 26, when they will produce on Tuesday evening Mortimer Murdock's great London and New York success entitled "A Hoop of Gold," and on Wednesday evening Elliot Barnes' military drama founded on incidents of the late civil war entitled "The Field of Honor," or Ruth's Devotion." Both plays will be mounted with special scenery and novel mechanical effects. The sale of seats will commence at Tobriner's cigar store on Thursday morning next.

Sale of the Manhattan.

The controlling interest of the Manhattan Company, that formerly was owned by Gage, Curtis and Patton, was sold yesterday to R. M. Whipple, L. J. Hanchett and other parties. This includes all the mining property, the store buildings, etc., but the bank is not included in the sale, it still remains under the same management, namely, Paxton & Curtis. The sale has been under negotiation for some time, in which a vast and valuable property has changed hands, which is closely allied with the support of Austin. The place will improve in business.—Reveille.

She Eats There no More.

"Shall I sit on your right hand?" asked a young lady of an old gentleman of Carson just as she was about to sit down to dinner with him and his wife.

"You can if you want to but I should much prefer that you choose my right knee," was the gallant rejoinder.

That's the reason the girl hasn't been invited to dine there since.

—A man in the East attempted to kiss a girl and was so delighted with the sensation that he held on until he lost his breath and falling at her feet expired of suffocation. Of course a man with his lips glued to a pretty girl hates to let go but can easily save his bacon by breathing through his nose. The girl no doubt saved her life by this simple expedient.
